Stereotypes of South Asians are broadly believed impressions about individuals of South Asian origin that are often inconsistent with reality. While the impressions are wrongly presumed to be universally true for all people of South Asian origin, these stereotypes adversely affect the South Asians as well as the acculturation process.. With 20th century immigration of South Asians around the ...

Ted Noffs later added: "The world today is torn apart on the basis of caste, creed, colour, nationality, as well as the socio-economic divide, and is in dire straits towards self-destruction, needing the Einsteins and Galileos of the spirit to show the human race a scientific basis for a spiritual life. Religions are man-made, here today and gone tomorrow.

Kudos for making such a valid point. You™d think this is a point you wouldn™t have to make, but unfortunately many people don™t seem to understand that you don™t have to agree with someone™s sexuality, political affiliation or point of view to still treat them with the same respect everyone else deserves.
